Reverse Distributors for Controlled Substances

If returning controlled drugs to the distributor where they were purchased is not an option, disposal of unused stocks of controlled drugs is usually accomplished using "Reverse Distributors." The DEA will no longer accept drugs for disposal but has licensed private companies to receive controlled substances that are expired or no longer wanted. These companies typically charge a fee for the service, but the administrative aspect of the process is greatly streamlined for the veterinary practice. A complete list of reverse distributors should be available from any DEA office however, we've compiled this short list as a resource for the veterinary profession. Inclusion on this list does not constitute an endorsement and we recommend "shopping around" for the service and price that best suits your practice!
